

THE HIT TV SHOW!

AMERICA'S DUMBEST CRIMINALS

*John A. Palumbo,
Executive Producer*

“America’s Dumbest Criminals” was originally conceived and syndicated in 1996. It was a hit immediately as it led the way for what is better known today as “reality TV.” Ahead of its time, and a common household name, the show has been seen by almost everyone, and they can still recall some of the hilarious and outrageous videos from this popular TV show.

“America's Dumbest Criminals” racked up high ratings in its first four seasons in the United States and in syndicated airings in more than 30 countries, according to New York-based Lacey Entertainment, which markets and distributes the show worldwide.

Along with the New York Times best-selling book, “America’s Dumbest Criminals,” executive producer John Palumbo brings priceless archival and new footage of the show to the media, including interviews with police officers.

Palumbo is a savvy talk show guest, and -- as you can imagine -- he has some of the most uproarious stories and footage to reveal about “America’s Dumbest Criminals.”

Also a keynote speaker, Palumbo is accessible coast-to-coast.
